Gov. Laura Kelly announced new measures to protect Kansas families from the spread of the COVID-19 virus, saying the order made mandatory the rule that businesses must close for no more than 30 days. The order was to be in effect for the rest of the school year, the governor said.

Governor issues new measures

Gov. Laura Kelly announced new measures to protect Kansas families from the spread of the COVID-19 virus, saying the order made mandatory the rule that businesses must close for no more than 30 days. The order was to be in effect for the rest of the school year, the governor said.

Governor issues new measures

Gov. Laura Kelly announced new measures to protect Kansas families from the spread of the COVID-19 virus, saying the order made mandatory the rule that businesses must close for no more than 30 days. The order was to be in effect for the rest of the school year, the governor said.

Governor issues new measures

Gov. Laura Kelly announced new measures to protect Kansas families from the spread of the COVID-19 virus, saying the order made mandatory the rule that businesses must close for no more than 30 days. The order was to be in effect for the rest of the school year, the governor said.

Governor issues new measures

Gov. Laura Kelly announced new measures to protect Kansas families from the spread of the COVID-19 virus, saying the order made mandatory the rule that businesses must close for no more than 30 days. The order was to be in effect for the rest of the school year, the governor said.

Governor issues new measures

Gov. Laura Kelly announced new measures to protect Kansas families from the spread of the COVID-19 virus, saying the order made mandatory the rule that businesses must close for no more than 30 days. The order was to be in effect for the rest of the school year, the governor said.

Governor issues new measures

Gov. Laura Kelly announced new measures to protect Kansas families from the spread of the COVID-19 virus, saying the order made mandatory the rule that businesses must close for no more than 30 days. The order was to be in effect for the rest of the school year, the governor said.

Governor issues new measures

Gov. Laura Kelly announced new measures to protect Kansas families from the spread of the COVID-19 virus, saying the order made mandatory the rule that businesses must close for no more than 30 days. The order was to be in effect for the rest of the school year, the governor said.

Governor issues new measures

Gov. Laura Kelly announced new measures to protect Kansas families from the spread of the COVID-19 virus, saying the order made mandatory the rule that businesses must close for no more than 30 days. The order was to be in effect for the rest of the school year, the governor said.

Governor issues new measures

Gov. Laura Kelly announced new measures to protect Kansas families from the spread of the COVID-19 virus, saying the order made mandatory the rule that businesses must close for no more than 30 days. The order was to be in effect for the rest of the school year, the governor said.

Governor issues new measures

Gov. Laura Kelly announced new measures to protect Kansas families from the spread of the COVID-19 virus, saying the order made mandatory the rule that businesses must close for no more than 30 days. The order was to be in effect for the rest of the school year, the governor said.

Governor issues new measures

Gov. Laura Kelly announced new measures to protect Kansas families from the spread of the COVID-19 virus, saying the order made mandatory the rule that businesses must close for no more than 30 days.